AN ARTISTIC CREATION BY

THES

THE FIRST COLLABORATIVE CURATORIAL PROJECT BY TIMES

The Crossing is the first artistic creation of the TIMES project, commissioned by four festivals: Unsound, Semibreve, Berlin Atonal, and Sónar. As an ambitious multi-dimensional and multi-disciplinary work, presented in two separate chapters and performances, 'The Crossing' involves artists, musicians, and researchers from across Europe and beyond. Both performances will be presented at the festivals involved in the commissioning process throughout 2024 and 2025.

AN ARTISTIC EXPLORATION OF BORDERS

The golden thread of the project focuses on the nature of borders and the complex emotional psychodynamics experienced by migrants. The sites representing Europe's current political landscape are not always the obvious ones; cities, parliaments, universities, and workplaces.

Politics can also be read against the grain by examining those locations often incorrectly perceived as apolitical, lying outside human history and in the margins rather than at the centre of our collective political lives.

FIRST CHAPTER 'BIAŁOWIEŻA' CHRIS WATSON & IZABELA DŁUZYK

The Białowieża Forest, a site of exceptional natural beauty that has become the symbol of wider geopolitical tensions

One such site identified by the four commissioning festivals is Białowieża Forest, which stretches across Poland and Belarus. It is the last mainland part of the primeval forest that once stretched across Europe and is still largely untouched by humans.

For more than two years, migrants from the Middle East, Africa and South Asia have attempted to cross through this forest into Poland and the EU – and have been pushed back by Polish guards. This has resulted in migrants being trapped and dying. A metal wall has been constructed, dividing the forest, which has become a symbol of wider geopolitical tensions.

Field recording in total darkness

This site provides the geographical grounding for the first chapter of this project, called 'Białowieża'.

This new performance is a work by the legendary field recordist Chris Watson, who is working with Izabela Dłużyk, a blind Polish sound recordist celebrated for her profound connection to nature's acoustics and recognized as one of the BBC's 100 Most Influential Women in 2023 for her expertise in bird sound recording. Their new performance will be performed in total darkness in multichannel audio.

SECOND CHAPTER 'A FORBIDDEN DISTANCE' SAINT ABDULLAH, EOMAC & REBECCA SALVADORI

The experience of grief encountered by the people on the move

The second chapter to the work is jointly produced by Iranian-Canadian brothers Mohammad and Mehdi (Saint Abdullah), Irish sound-designer and musician Ian McDonnell (Eomac), and London-based Italo-Australian video artist and filmmaker Rebecca Salvadori. The project, entitled 'A Forbidden Distance' is an exploration of the sense of self in relation to processes of displacement. Their collaborative audio-visual work reflects on the nature of stories and fragmented experiences, both collectively and individually.

"We were particularly excited to work with other festival curators directly on a collaborative project. Being able to benefit from the personal connections and experiences of other festivals added layers of depth and complexity to the types of performances we were able to create and made the process more fun and surprising."
Laurens & Harry - Curators for Berlin Atonal

"By joining forces, we can inspire each other to create solid artistic projects and delve into topics that are important to us and our audiences. Working together makes the curatorial process more interesting. In this case, all the artists involved in the project play a key role in portraying different perspectives on an important topic: borders in today's world." Sónar

ARTISTS

CHRIS WATSON

Chris Watson was a founding member of the influential Sheffield based experimental music group Cabaret Voltaire during the late 1970's and early 1980's. Since then he has developed a particular and passionate interest in recording the wildlife sounds of animals and habitats from around the world. As a freelance composer and sound recordist Watson specialises creating spatial sound installations which feature a strong sense and spirit of place.

IZABELA DŁUŻYK

Izabela Dłużyk is a Polish nature sound recordist. She has recorded many birds including cranes in the Warta Mouth, cormorants on the Vistula Spit, geese in the Beka reserve, whooper swans in the Słupia Valley and storks in Żywków on the border with Russia among the many others. She was named to BBC's 100 Influential Women list in November 2023.

EOMAC

Ian McDonnell aka Eomac is an Irish producer and sound designer living in Wicklow near Dublin. The Eomac sound draws from obscure samples and raw sound design in an ongoing exploration of intense, visceral music for body and soul. Alongside his solo releases as Eomac he's also one half of the duos Lakker, noeverything and Lena Andersson.

REBECCA SALVADORI

Rebecca Salvadori is a London-based artist working at the intersection between video art and documentary. She has a long experience in filming environments with a focus on non-hierarchical/chronological layering and sequencing of audio to footage. Over the last 15 years, she has consistently engaged with experimental music, with a great interest in finding ways to connect the moving image with sound practices, live performances and alternative forms of storytelling.

SAINT ABDULLAH

Formed by two brothers, Mohammad and Mehdi Mehrabani-Yeganeh, raised primarily in the West, away from their family in Iran, Saint Abdullah is designed somewhat as an introduction to a different palette of sounds, creating a charged and anxious, but still assertive mixture of minimalist dub and Iranian samples. The two are particularly drawn to the sounds associated with Shia Islam, predominant in Iran but usually a minority in the Muslim world.
